

"The experiment is to test whether the bank data can be quickly and effectively rerouted using space as a way to bypass the problems on the ground. Having communications back up is important for banks, insurance companies and other such organizations for they stand not only to lose their money but customer confidence which is very important for such kind of organizations when their communication lines are down."

Dr. Don Flournoy
Professor, School of Media Arts and Studies